GREETINGS FROM THE MAYOR OF BUDAPEST

Welcome to Budapest!

Welcome to the Hungarian capital, which is an increasingly popular tourist destination and a more and more important location on the tourist map of the world. Tourism in Hungary closed its best year ever last year, and similar results are expected in the sector this year. One of the main reasons for the development is that Hungary is considered to be a safe and predictable destination, while Budapest is seen as the most exciting and most vibrant city in the region, offering a range of attractions to its visitors. The Hungarian capital is a self-conscious and at the same time hospitable city with an increasingly solid identity, a colourful cultural life and rich traditions – a city which unites.

The leadership of the capital is dedicated to establishing a city which is proud of its spirit and its past, in which people can live comfortably in the present as well, and which enchants its visitors. To further these, popular districts in the city centre, as well as representative public buildings and squares, are being continuously renovated, and the world-famous thermal baths of Budapest are also constantly under development.

The Budapest Guide introduces the sights and the cultural institutions of the Hungarian capital, as well as several other places of interest for tourists, providing maps, descriptions, useful information, colourful illustrations and recommendations. It is no secret that our aim is to attract more and more visitors to the Hungarian capital, and we would like to persuade tourists to stay longer and return to us more frequently.

I hope that this publication will be useful for you. Have a good time in Budapest and share your good memories with others as well!

István Tarlós
The Mayor of Budapest

BORKONYHA

The place, which is functioning as a restaurant and a wine bar as well, is a combination of a French bistro, a Hungarian family restaurant, a professional wine shop, and a bar. The selection includes 200 wines, mostly Hungarian ones. The dishes are based on fresh and daily purchased ingredients, as well as diversity. Chef Ákos Sárközy gains inspiration from Transylvanian cuisine, but he is also keen on other countries' ingredients, for example Spain, France and Italy. The dishes are rich in flavours; the wine selection is wide and flexible, and the service is personal and friendly. No wonder that Borkonyha received a Michelin star in 2014.

INFO

Kazinczy utca is the busiest and a quite narrow street in the Jewish Quarter. The synagogue in Kazinczy utca, which was built in Art Nouveau style, and the Hungarian Museum of Electrical Engineering can both be found here, but the ruin pub revolution of recent years has also started here in 2004 with Szimpla Kert. The street, which is as narrow as a car, hosts streetfood bistros such as Bors and Karaván, but traditional Jewish gastronomy is also represented here in a classic restaurant environment, for example in Macesz Bistro. A row of little pubs, ruin pubs and clubs is lined up along Kazinczy utca: Ellátó Kert, Mika Tivadar Múlató, Méter, and of course Szimpla Kert.

LOOKING AFTER YOUR VALUABLES

Never leave your luggage and valuables unattended. If you cannot immediately move into your room upon arrival, use the left-luggage office or a similar service at your hotel. At lidos or spas, use the changing cubicles and safe deposits. Be particularly mindful of your valuables in the street, in busy locations, shopping precincts, and public transport stops and vehicles. Avoid calling others' attention to the valuables on your person, such as your telephone, camera, cash and jewellery. Should persons in uniform in a public space demand you identify yourself and present your papers, make sure you are indeed talking to a public officer, and ask them to show you their photo ID and badge. Your personal data should be verified over the radio, so you need not, and should not, lose sight of your documents. In case of a theft or robbery, contact the nearest crime prevention centre of the police in the Castle or at Heroes' Square. If you become a victim, call the toll-free emergency numbers 112 or 107, or visit the website of the Budapest Police Headquarters: www.police.hu;brfk. Further help is available at <http://safetyinhungary.info>.

REGULATIONS ON SMOKING AND ALCOHOL CONSUMPTION

Tobacco products can only be purchased at licensed tobacconists, the "Nemzeti Dolánybolt." Smoking is forbidden in indoor public spaces such as bars, restaurants and pubs, and out of doors in the following cases: in public transport stops, and within five metres from the entrance of businesses and workplaces. Elsewhere, smoking is allowed at designated places only. Alcohol consumption is forbidden in public spaces. Persons under 18 years of age cannot be served alcohol, nor can they enter the tobacconists. Certain places of entertainment may also bar them from entering.

RESTAURANTS, BARS

Before you order, make sure you are familiar with the prices and service charges, which you can usually find on the menu and wine list. Tips are not obligatory, but if you choose to give, the customary rate is 10 per cent of the bill. Be wary of overfamiliar strangers or attractive women in the street who accost you and suggest a "good place," where you are expected to pay for their drinks – at extortionate prices.

PARKING TIP:

Budapest is divided into parking zones, and fees vary from one zone to the next. Find the parking meter closest to your car, and insert the necessary amount using coins that are marked as accepted. Display the slip behind the windshield. You may also purchase parking time by sending an SMS to the number displayed on the meter, but only Hungarian phone numbers can be used for the transaction. The paid parking hours can also vary over zones, though generally the 8 am–8 pm period is paying, while weekends are free (with the exception of special zones, like Buda Castle). For short-term stops, coaches are recommended to use the car park behind Mücsarnok, or one of the P+R car parks near the major sights.
